Staff of Divisional Secretary Office Panadura, for providing required statistics.

Sudantha, my friend who helped me apart from his CDP studies and office work, for become my own shadow, who help and encourage me in my pressurized situations.

Ranga malli, Pradeep and Dinesh(MP) for giving great support who sacrificed their own work.

Many thanks to my Nirmala for being with me encouraging, appreciating and coordinating my work in every struggle and victory.

My colleagues and batch mates who encouraged me numerously in completion of the study.

Chuti malli(Laki), for his immense help devotion and the contributions on the study beyond his age and limitations. My elder brother for helping and encouraging whenever I needed.

My dearest parents for taking me to this position with many difficulties and pains and for the encouragements and blessing extended at all the time.

Among the others that deserve special thanks are the Citizens of South – West coastal region, for whom I dedicate this study.

Last, but not least I thank many others, who wish to remain anonymous but without whose help and dedication in various ways, this study would not have been a success.

Abstract

The visually perceivable physical setting & activities of a place, principally structure the characteristics of the place. Less tangible than these components, yet serves to link & embrace them, their attribute of identity has variously been terms as 'spirit of place', All terms refer to character or identity of the place, a strong & distinctive spatial quality strange to that place, which differs from that of all other places.

Streetscapes in urban contexts are such places where creation, preservation and maintenance of strong characteristics have become indeed a crucial need. Since the urban environments have become disordered & meaningless places which does not reflect the historical precedence nor the historical character due to many ad-hoc developments that have taken place, proper understanding of the notion of character in urban streetscape in cities is essential in order to determine a better future for the urban cities of the world.

Therefore the urban centres or cities are forming a threat of becoming continuous corridors with the adjoining towns developing in the same manner. Linear expression along Galle Road is deteriorating gradually. While these roads are commercializing rapidly, these strips are characterized by noise, confusion and harsh climate: monotonous & endless, formless & eventless growth, lacking a particular hierarchy & coherence quite inhospitable to man on foot and in vehicles, spatial movement becoming monotonous....
