Messages

PROF. A.K.W. JAYAWARDANE
Vice Chancellor
University of Moratuwa

I am pleased to send my best wishes to the International Conference in Cities, People and Places 2013, initiated by the Department of Architecture at the University of Moratuwa. Out of several international conferences organized by the Faculty of Architecture in the recent past, this is the first conference focusing on urban design and public realm development.

The Department of Architecture has been producing human resource expertise in Urban Design through the conduct of its Masters Degree program since 2009. This conference is another major contribution by the Urban Design Program of the Department of Architecture towards initiating a debate among the international urban designers, planners, and those who are interested in researching, working and practicing in the areas of public realm improvements and enhancing the living standards of the people of cities.

Cities all over the world are constantly under pressure to meet ever increasing demands of people, who are primary users of our built environments. The equilibrium between social, economic and environmental milieu in our cities are always under threat, and any imbalance would lead to chaos and disorder. The existing infrastructure in cities are struggling to cater to the extra burden, with large amounts of resources being wasted in finding ad hoc solutions to cater to these demands. With the unprecedented volume of post-war development work currently being undertaken by the Government, the issues related to city development in Sri Lanka create greater significance. In this context, efficient utilization of the limited resources available while satisfying the aspirations of the community is a challenge for urban designers.

This conference provides an opportunity for all participants to gain firsthand acquaintance on the attempts made in different parts of the world in developing urban landscapes responding to the needs of the people, who are the ultimate users of the cities.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the organizers and participants for their contributions, and wish this conference great success!

PROF.P.K.S. MAHANAMA
Dean of the Faculty of Architecture
University of Moratuwa

It is a great pleasure for me to have the opportunity to write this message to the proceedings of ISCCP 2013 research symposium organised by the Department of Architecture, University of Moratuwa. The research culture in the Faculty of Architecture has been growing over the years and faculty has acquired recognition through teaching, research and consultancies. Research activities are carried out at three level, i.e. Faculty level, Department level and Individual level. Major mode of presenting research carried at each level is to hold the research symposium on a theme related to build environment. In this endeavor, the Department of Architecture of the Faculty of Architecture, University of Moratuwa in association with its international and national academic partners has organized an International symposium on “Cities, People & Places”(ISCCP) in this year to provide a platform for wider range of research and scholarly work carried out by local and international researchers and practitioners who are involved in Architecture, Building Sciences, Environmental Design, Urban Design, Engineering, Facilities Management, Landscape architecture, Product design, Project Management Technology and urban Planning.

The theme of this year’s International symposium is the “Cities, People and Places.”As a result of the modernization and globalization new transformation in built environments especially in cities has been experienced in all over the world. The prominent issues of this trend include the loss of identities of places and the socio-cultural inferences, over emphasis on technology and communication, imbalances on natural systems and resultant natural disasters and failure to adopt for global economic crises. It is important to address these issues at a greater depth in order to bring out the intellectual discourse at this symposium. It will also deliberate on the emerging issues related to the Cities, People and Places and outline the future directions to create sustainable cities where we live in.

I am sure that Department of Architecture Research symposium 2013 would be an important milestone to expand the prospect of research carried out by the staff and students of our faculty.

I wish ISCCP Symposium2013 all success!

ARCHT. D.P.CHANDRASEKARA
Head of the Department of Architecture
University of Moratuwa

I am pleased to send this message to the International Conference “Cities, People and Places” organized by Department of Architecture, University of Moratuwa.

The architectural education in Sri Lanka was started in 1961 at the Institute of Practical Technology of Moratuwa. Subsequently it became a department in the University of Moratuwa and currently offers undergraduate and post graduate degree programmes in Architecture, Landscape design, urban design, Architectural Conservation. These degrees are recognized by National and International accreditation bodies.

With the dawn of peace in the island, the built environment is subjected to a rapid transformation. In the context it has become necessary for the Department of Architecture of University Moratuwa to take a lead role in finding new paths of development in built environment, architecture and urban design.

This conference is an attempt in the direction; providing a platform for the exchange of ideas among the local and foreign scholars. It would give an opportunity for the researchers to discuss and deliberate their works in an academic environment.

I welcome all the presenters and participants of the conference and wish them the very best.

Key note speakers

PROF. ALI MADANIPOUR
Professor of Urban Design, Newcastle University, UK

Ali Madanipour is Professor of Urban Design and the Director of Global Urban Research Unit (GURU) at the School of Architecture, Planning and Landscape, Newcastle University. He has studied (M. Arch., PhD), practiced, and conducted research in architecture, urban design and planning.

Funded by major UK, European and international funders, his research focuses on the design, development and management of cities, organized through three overlapping themes of knowledge and rationality, public space and urban governance, and urban neighborhoods and social exclusion.

His work has been translated into French, German, Italian, Japanese, Mandarin, Persian and Spanish. In 2010 he was the City of Vienna Senior Visiting Professor at the Technical University of Vienna and in 2011 the Wits-Claude Leon Distinguished Scholar at the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg.

His latest books include Whose Public Space? International case studies in urban design and development (2010), Knowledge Economy and the City (2011), and Public Space and the Challenges of Urban Transformation in Europe (2013), all published by Routledge, London.
